

ABSTRACT

An impact absorbing device of a vehicle, comprising a cylindrical body having step parts and having a diameter gradually changing in the axial direction. The step parts (3) are spirally formed around the axis (4) of the cylindrical body so that an impact energy in the collision of the vehicle can be sufficiently absorbed.